Dear Alan,

Your lecture arrived safely yesterday. I haven't phoned to tell you this because our phone stopped working about a week ago. Apparently if you dial the number it rings away -- but nothing happens at our end.

I like the lecture very much. The trouble with it is that I don't think it should be abridged. I have the same problem with the first Ernie Wentzel Memorial Lecture, delivered by Kentridge, which Jill gave me when I was in Johannesburg on Wednesday. It is about the same length as yours and I don't think anything should be left out of it either.

I think what we should do is have two slightly differently shaped Realities, with one lecture in each, even if that does mean that the articles are longer than we normally expect to have. It also means that your lecture may not appear in the next issue. Hope you don't mind that.

Jonno arranged a good meeting for the Liberal Democratic Association in Johannesburg on Wednesday so I hope we can now get things started there.

I am sorry October 13th will not suit you for spending the night. I'll phone about arranging another day after you get back from East London.

Yours,

Alan
