Dear Professor Ashley,

I was very interested to read a few weeks ago a short newspaper report on your ideas for a possible synthesis, in a future education policy, of "liberal" education principles and some of the proposals coming forward now from the proponents of "people's education".

We would very much like to get a discussion on the subject going in the columns of "REALITY", a journal we produce every second month from here, and I write to ask if you would be prepared to start it off with an article giving us your thoughts? Our articles are usually around the 3,000 word mark, but that is only a very loose guide.

If you would be prepared to do such an article would a deadline of the beginning of October be too soon for you?

Under separate cover I am sending two copies of recent issues of REALITY so that you can get an idea of what it is about. Neither is really typical, the first because it was a special issue, the second because the Emergency forced us to leave quite a lot out of it.

If you could do the article for us we would be most grateful.

Yours sincerely,
