Dear Sheena,

Many thanks for your note of 17th September, the various documents which came with it, and for agreeing to comment on the Nick Olivier article.

I hope you will have found the copy of the article I sent you waiting for you when you got home, or if not that, your regular REALITY. In case you find neither, here is another copy !

We may have to go to press before you get back, in which case could you meet an end-of-November deadline ? I think you should assume that will be the case unless there is a further letter from me waiting for you. Our last two issues have been so late because of vetting over the emergency regulations that I think we simply must try to get this next one out on time. We won't, because it will never get to the printers tomorrow, which is when it should, but I hope it will get there next week. I don't think we will lose anything by your article being delayed. We will probably have an even better idea of what the new laws mean by then.

I hope you had a good trip.

Regards,

Peter Brown
