Dear Professor Ashley,

As suggested in my letter of 24th September, we are now definitely aiming to have a number of articles on education in the REALITY for which the deadline would be the last week in January.

We are hoping to have one article on "People's Education", one from Conor Cruise O'Brien on his view of the future of university education in the country, and we are hoping very much that you will consider doing one for us, possibly on the subject I suggested in my earlier letter, a future synthesis of people's and liberal education ideas as a basis for our education system.

Would you be prepared to do an article for us (of about 3,000 words) on this or any other appropriate educational subject of your choice? And, if you were, would that deadline suit you?

Yours sincerely,

P.M. Brown.
