

P.O.Box 74,
Hilton,
3245.

15th July, 1987.

Professor Michael Savage,
Department of Sociology,
University of Cape Town,
P.Bag Rondebosch,
7700.

Dear Mike,

We were in England visiting a daughter when we heard about all this subversive travelling and only found out, when we got back on Monday, that you had been part of it. Why should you be so lucky?

The person who told me that you had been there was Pat McKenzie, who had opened your letter to me. He is the REALITY postman. I haven't seen the letter yet but the hint in it that you might be prepared to write something for us about your travels is something I'M not going to let pass easily. Would you do something for us — while it's all fresh in your mind? That would mean aiming for the deadline I mentioned — but we would wait for you if you wanted a bit more time. I think it should go into this issue because the next, only coming out in November, would be a bit late.

I'll phone when I know that you're back.

Regards,

Alan