Dear Christine,

Your letter about Robin Hallett's article arrived today -- and thank you very much for the R10,00 which came with it : REALITY is close to bankruptcy, so it was very welcome.

As it so happens I had a letter from Robin Hallett a few days ago asking me if I could ask the printers to make a few copies of his article for people who seemed to be interested in South Africa -- so I had about twenty copies printed for him. I am sure that that is more than he will need, so I am sending you five. There seem to be blank pages mixed up in them but that seems to have been caused by some printer's gremlin and nothing can be done about it now.

I told Robin I had found the article a great comfort. It made our rather puny efforts seem worthwhile.

I will pass on all the family news to Vumani. He is well and came through the flood with his home more or less undamaged.

We are looking forward to Bunty getting here.

With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,

Alan Hallett
