Dear Sir,

Last week I paid one of my infrequent visits to your Society's Church St building.

While filling in my forms I was astonished to have removed from next to me, and directed to an alcove different from the one I was using, an African member of your society.

I don't know how your African customer felt about being treated in this manner but I would be surprised if he liked it. I was certainly disgusted to see it happen to him.

I would be glad to know if this is now the Society's policy -- that while soliciting funds from the African public, it will treat them on a differential and segregated basis? And if this is now policy, has it been imposed by law or by choice?

Yours faithfully,

P.M. Brown.
