Sir,

A short while ago your correspondent, M.C.Martin, asked in your letter columns, what the haves of the world and Natal should do about the have nots of the world and Natal.

For Natal, at least, I suggest that part of the answer to his question is, give them the vote.

This may not solve all the have nots problems but you can be sure that without the leverage with which the vote provides them, they will never persuade most of the haves, out of the simple goodness of their hearts, to give those problems the attention they deserve.

Yours faithfully,

Peter Brown
