Dear Archie,

Many thanks for the copies of the charges and indictment which reached me a few days ago. To my untrained legal eye, as they relate to you, they don't seem to add up to anything much at all.

I am enclosing with this letter a small cheque to help with household expenses, but I am a bit worried because the last one does not seem to have been cashed, according to my June bank statement which reached me a few days ago. The cheque was dated about June 10th and I have a feeling I left it with you the last time I saw you. Could you check on it?

I am afraid I have been more or less confined to the farm these past few weeks. First it was firebreak burning time, which goes on every day for weeks, and now the two senior people are on leave, so it is difficult to get away. As soon as they are back again I will try to come down and see you.

Best wishes to the family.

Sincerely,
