

P.O.Box 71,
Hilton,
3245,
South Africa.

14th June, 1987.

Mr. Jimmy Dey,
La Residence des Cedres,
10 avenue du parc,
74200 Thonon-les-Bains,
FRANCE.

Dear Jimmy,

Apologies for the ages it has taken me to answer your two letters of mid-April.

Your account of the bus boycott hasn't reached our "official historian" yet. I lent it to a friend of Tom Lodge's, the author of the original article, and he still has it, and wants to show it to Tom. He has promised to make a copy for Lodge and the historian but doesn't ever seem to get around to it. I think it is important that Lodge should be aware of your memories of those times, because I am pretty sure he has been given a romanticised picture of events from one particular point of view.

You will have heard of the disastrous white election result, followed this week by the reimposition of the State of Emergency. I didn't expect quite such an unhappy election but I did expect the Emergency.

So it goes !

All the best,