Dear Randolph

I have recently been in correspondence with Alan Paton who is finishing the second volume of his autobiography. He wrote and asked if I would read the two chapters that deal in part with the ARM, and I said I would, though I'm not sure whether that was a good idea. Nonetheless, he was kind enough to ask.

I have replied to him and thought that you might like to see both the chapters and my comments. The latter are not especially relevant or important, but in the chapters there are various references to yourself which you might want to see before they are published. So here are copies of the two chapters, plus my reply.

Are you well? Adrian du Plessis (do you remember him, he's now a senior man at CUP) says he saw you on the TV as President of the Huguenot society. No doubt you are busy with other things too, I still hope that one day it will be possible to meet and talk.

I'm working on a book of sorts about growing up in SA and leading to the events of 1964 and if you have any interest in reading a draft when it is ready I'd be happy to send it to you and would be grateful for any comments and criticisms.

Do you hear anything more of how Eddie is getting on these days?

Hope all is well with you.

Yours

Adrian,
