Dear Mag,

You're right, of course about the request you made about Turok; it was I who mistook your use of the word "guardian" for "trustee", and thought therefore that BH had named BT in his will rather than BT giving BH a metaphorical padlock upon his departure from the UK. If you'd write to T, try to spell his name correctly.

Auret van Heerden was with me as an assistant throughout the AIDS/compounds debacle, and at the meal in my house at Bretigny when Ms Philips gave her views; the only other "independent" witness to my efforts would have been Paul Benjamin, the labour lawyer and one-time adviser to the NUM (whom I tried to enlist in order to persuade the NUM higher-ups, without success). But these people are both ANC-groupies and they could never be persuaded to talk out. I do, however, have my journal entry(ies) on the subject, neatly printed out in one of the drawers of my filing cabinets in Kalk Bay. And I suppose Bill H might remember, somewhere in the depths of Australia.

Yours,

Neville
