Dear David,

I have now received the six author's copies one of which, as I told Fred Cannon, has no photographs. Both Dorrie and I think the dust-jacket very good, and the book is splendid. I am horrified, however, to find some more mistakes. On page 136 there appears "University College of Pietermaritzburg". It should be "University College in Pietermaritzburg". I missed this mistake in the proofs.

Page 155, end of para 2, I meant to write "evocation" and missed "invocation" every time.

Page 188, we agreed to put "opportunity for development" in square brackets, to show that it did not appear in the original text. Here I think the printer failed.

Page 250, I said Gandhi's birthday was October 3, whereas it was October 2. This error is all the more annoying because I knew it was October 2.

Page 278, 4 lines from bottom, "a group" should most certainly have been "or group".

I am at present reading page 282, so ought to find four more mistakes. Do they fill you with shame or not?

I hope that last SUNDAY TIMES (October 18) headlines does not worry any of the ARGUS group. In a way I think it was Mervis's reparation for the earlier excess. Yesterday's piece hardly trespassed on the book at all, and I hope the ARGUS people see it in the same way.

I have now had second thoughts about posting the dozen copies I ordered to me and have decided to accept your offer to send direct to the recipients. The books are to go to the following - Dr. D.F. Paton; Mr. J.S. Paton; Mrs. Mollie Cooper; Mrs. David Evans; Mr. Harry Oppenheimer (can you find his address please); Mr. Donald Molteno; Mr. Eric Smith; Mr. Uys Krige; Mr. Neville Nuttall, Hilton College, Hilton, Natal; Mr. & Mrs. Oswin Bull, Somerset East, C.P.; Mrs. E.G. Malherbe, 267 King George V Avenue, Durban.

I am enclosing cards to correspond. The one for "Janie & E.G." is to go to Mrs. E.G. Malherbe, and the one for "Neville & Lucy" is to go to Mr. Neville Nuttall. I hope I have made everything clear.

Yours ever,
