Dear Mr du Toit

Thank you for your letter of 1 November 1988. Eddie Daniels tells me he has had several meetings with you. He seems to think you and I should meet when you are here.

I must confess that I am not attracted by what you call 'the reconstruction' of ARM members as 'political subjects or agents'. I also recoil totally from your proposed use of 'the sophisticated and powerful theories of subjectivity' as described in your second paragraph on Methodology. I assume all that gobbledegook is necessary to satisfy the examiners. I also do not know what you mean by saying 'we became radicalised'. The organisation came into being because we were already radicals.

I should be in London at the end of January and expect to hear from you.

Yours sincerely

The above sounds very hot tempered. I shall look forward to meeting you, despite reservations about our activities being subjected to academic theorising.
