

ENGLISH 12: World Literature Written in English

New York, Dec. 28, 1968

1. Prof. John Healy, Carleton University, member of the Executive of ACLALAS, will represent the Association at this meeting.
2. All MLA members are invited to subscribe to the Newsletter of this Group by writing to Prof. Joseph Jones, Dept. of English, University of Texas, Austin, Texas 78712. Semiannual, $1.00 per year.
3. The Conference on English Literatures of the World (CELW) held its third Annual Meeting at the NCTE convention in Milwaukee this year. CELW also held a three-day study group at which four curriculum sequences in World Literature in English were planned; these will be assembled and tested for reports to be made at the fourth Annual Meeting in Washington, D.C., Nov. 1969.
CELW is an association of school and college teachers interested in enlarging the English curriculum by introducing literary works from and linguistic studies in the national literatures in English normally not included in British-American literature. MLA members who are interested in the work of CELW should write to the National Secretary, Dr. Priscilla Tyler, Dept. of English, University of Missouri, Kansas City, Mo. 64110.
4. Group 12 has been asked by Prof. L.T. Hergenham, Editor of Australian Literary Studies, to publicize that journal by distributing an information sheet. Specimen copies are available from the address on that sheet.
