Dear Son,

I have heard, within the last day or two, how different things were for you in Parliament during the Indian Repatriation affair.
 At the time I thought it was some Dominion lunacy, taken up with malicious delight by the opposition, that the United Party despise as I did.
 I hardly took it seriously. Of course, I realize now how serious it was, & I wish (I hope not too late) to tell you, as ever, of my respect & sympathy.

But, my dear Jan, why did the W.P. - the Govt - let the thing come up at all? What use is it to them, what is its urgency
 - now, when things are so delicate between England & India, & the United States is so suspicious about the Empire, & we're supposed to be fighting for democracy - to go & make trouble with the Indians?

Perhaps you'll tell me!

Squadron Keeling hopes you may be able to dine with him <sup>next week</sup> (will be there).
 If you do, will you sleep here the night? I want so much to hear of everything from you. Is your mother coming? Will she come to us?

Yours -
 Sarah
