

Eventually S convinced him that S was a tourist and he reluctantly let me in for 6 months.

I saw a guy called Gavin from COSAWR. He thinks accomodation and a work permit will be my biggest problems but he thinks S will be able to get social security quite soon.

I phoned my mother and she seems to have accepted this whole thing and she promised to send me some money for clothes but nothing has arrived as yet. She says they will also give me some <sup>money</sup> if S need it but she stressed that this will not go on for ever. When S spoke to her my dad was not there so I am not sure what he had to say about it.

I still can't believe that I am <sup>here</sup> ~~sure~~. It all seems like ~~one~~ one long dream but today S seemed to feel a bit more used to the place. I went to see the parts of London S. know well and this made me feel more at home. I saw Princess Anne today but the silly bitch didn't smile.

Yesterday John and S were protesting outside South Africa House in Trafalgar Square because of the SA raid into Maputo. Quite a lot of people were there including Jim Jenkins. I did not know it at the time but S read it in today's morning star.

Nothing much is happening at the moment but S will let you know of any further developments.

Lots of love
Mildas
