

recalcitrant ex-tenants & assorted lovers (present & ex)
The house & garden are now restored to a habitable condition, the bank are prepared to live with the backlog of unpaid bond & most of my customers paid up & ordered more stock.

Orlando was idle in my absence Duck is worrying as I am due to go to England at the end of the month and leave him in charge again. I shall have to hold his nose to the grindstone for the next few weeks & cross my fingers that something rubs off.

Fidelia used my car in my absence & drove into the barrier at the O.K. so now I need a new windscreen Tourists are beginning to re-appear and the sweaters seem determined to work harder this year. Orlando has done some lovely new designs so I shouldn't be too hard on him. He has inherited too many of Juhan's sloppy ways for my liking but at least he has his sweet, charming nature. Not a word from him, of course.

Wolfgang leaves at the end of next week & gave me some beautiful diamond earrings as a parting gift. He also bought a few tapestries as gifts for his family so I shall miss him!

I hope your pension has come through otherwise I guess it's bread and water - without the bread. If you need any help let me know.

lots of love

Elizabeth
