

Numsa builds councils to challenge monopoly capital

Self-organizing labor groups are a phenomenon of the 1970s, and the Numsa union is no exception. Its campaigns have concentrated on the interests of migrant and black workers in the gold mines. The union's success in organizing these workers has led to the formation of a council of unions in the gold mines.

Numsa was organized in 1975 and has since then built a strong base in the gold mines. It has been successful in organizing black workers in the gold mines, and has been successful in organizing black workers in the gold mines.
