

LIBERAL BALANCE SHEET

DEBIT

1. "The closing of Fort Hare is a symptom of a deadly serious development. It shows something of the forces with which S.A. is going to have to contend increasingly if influential groups or parties of whites continue to indicate integration of the races in a unified community of white and black as the direction of the country. In that way they grant in principle that the Bantu extremist is correct in his insistence on full rights. They admit that the moral right is overwhelmingly on his side. And once this has been done by White South Africa, a power is created in our country against which nothing can be a match in the long run—and in the short run too."—Die Burger.
2. It was true that the unity of the congregation of Christ was clearly shown at the table of the Lord. At the moment, however, a common Holy Communion of all races on a large scale in South Africa would scarcely be edifying—ds. C. B. Brink.

CREDIT

1. In a unanimous decision the U.S. Supreme Court has ordered the Southern States to end segregation in schools as soon as possible. Some difficulty in implementing this decision is still anticipated and it will be left to the Federal District Courts to decide whether school boards are carrying out integration in good faith.
2. Speaking in Broken Hill, Sir Roy Welensky said the policy of apartheid being followed in South Africa was inevitably doomed to failure.
3. During his visit to South Africa Mr. Adlai Stevenson said "I cannot with any confidence foresee the success of apartheid as applied to industry and economic development. I have great misgivings about efforts to arrest the progress of a whole race, when the rest of the world is moving so rapidly in other directions."
4. The National Council for Civil Liberties has decided to launch a campaign against "colour-bar" practices in England.
